Indian Association of Surgical Oncology

From the desk of the Editorial Secretary

Dear Friends,

Whilst collecting my thoughts, I reminded myself that 'You don't write because you have to write something, but because you have something to write'. It has been 33 years since IASO was established. Three decades later, I am writing to share with you some of my views as to how would I like to see IASO in the future?

Courses for Postgraduates

In addition to being an Organisation that is relevant to its membership, IASO must develop, nurture & support Postgraduate Surgical Oncology training. 'Hands on' Courses aimed at trainees specialising in Surgical Oncology, and equally, Courses that equip trainees with skills required to publish and present badged by IASO should be conducted in Regional Cancer Centres and other centres of excellence all over India on a regular basis. In time, these standardised courses would raise the profile & credibility of IASO.

This initiative would hugely increase our Associate Membership from the large pool of Postgraduates in General surgery with an interest in Surgical Oncology and all the trainees (Mch & DNB) in Surgical Oncology. Our younger generation are the future of IASO and it important to get them involved in the activities of IASO during their training years.

Implementing Cancer care guidelines & Audit performance

Surely, one of the best ways to improve cancer care across the country is to practice evidence based medicine and adhering to well established protocols and guidelines. I am aware that IASO has been involved in bringing out guidelines in the management of various cancers. However, these Guidelines which have been brought out after much effort would not translate to improving cancer care if they are not implemented on a national basis. IASO should form a Steering committee to look into the prospect of how best these guidelines could be enforced. Equally important is to ensure that IASO monitors its performance by auditing its activity with specific reference to implementation of IASO cancer guidelines nationally. This must be an ongoing exercise and a session must be earmarked for presentation of the data collected nationally at our annual IASO meetings.

IASO Website (www.iasoindia.in) & Journal (IJSO)

The website has been updated recently. The Indian Journal of Surgical Oncology (IJSO) has now become a reality. IJSO will be the official mouthpiece of our Association and the quality of papers published in the Journal would give IASO an opportunity to demonstrate to the world of our commitment to practicing evidence based cancer care.

International relations

IASO must make its presence felt on international platform. We now have established links with BASO and there is a strong working relationship between the two Organisations. As the Overseas Co-ordinator for IASO (2004 - 2007), I have worked very hard at strengthening our relationship with BASO. Although in the past, eminent Surgical Oncologists from India have attended and participated in BASO meetings on an ad hoc basis, since 2004, for the very first time, the participation of the President and Secretary of IASO at BASO annual meetings in an Official capacity has now been formalised. We must work at developing similar close relationships with all the major Surgical Oncology Associations across the world using the IASO-BASO model.

Accept Change

In many developed Countries across the World, the concept of 'Organ based Specialists' has evolved. There are now well established internationally acceptable Subspecialty Training Programmes & World renowned Fellowship Programmes in various subspecialties within Surgical Oncology. In the fullness of time, this format of training and accreditation is bound to become a standard in India as well. Sub specialization within Surgical Oncology has not happened by serendipity but by diligent planning. We, as an Association, must be prepared & 'open-minded' to accept changes for better delivery of care for our patients.

Finally...

I trust you like the 'new look' format of the Newsletter. I very much look forward to your views and suggestions which would help me in my endeavour to make it the best Sectional Newsletter of ASI.

With kindest regards.

Most sincerely,

Dr. P. RaghuRam

Indian Association of Surgical Oncology

President's Message

Dear Friends

It is indeed my pleasure to write these words of greetings to you.

The Indian Association of Surgical Oncology binds us together as Surgeons with a special interest and commitment to Surgical Oncology. We have, in our Association, members with diverse backgrounds, places of work and responsibilities. There are some who practice full time Surgical Oncology while there are others who do cancer surgery as a significant part of their surgical load. The IASO tries to fulfill the aspirations and academic needs of all these diverse members. It brings us all together with the common goal of pursuing excellence through the practice of evidence based medicine.

The IASO Newsletter and website (www.iasoindia.in), which have been given an exciting new look by our Editorial Secretary Dr. P. Raghu Ram, will give you all the information about events and happenings in the IASO. I recommend all of you to visit the website.

The first issue of the much awaited Indian Journal of Surgical Oncology - the official journal of IASO, shall soon be in your hands. A lot of hard work has gone into bringing out the Journal and it will require a strong determination and sustained efforts to keep it going. I commend Dr. Gopinath and his editorial team for all the effort made by them. I request all members to enrich the journal with their contributions and experiences. The forthcoming National Conference of the IASO at Mumbai (Sept. 16-19, 2010) will give all of us an opportunity to meet old friends once again and enjoy the rich scientific feast and warm hospitality being planned by the Organizing Committee of NATCON IASO 2010. I encourage and invite all of you to come to Mumbai for the Conference. We hope to provide you a memorable experience.

I look forward to meeting most of you in Mumbai in September.

Best wishes,

Sincerely

The organizing committee, Delhi State Chapter and the Association of Surgeons of India feel privileged and honored to extend a personal invitation to you to join us at asicon2010, the 70th Annual Conference of the Association of Surgeons of India, being held at asicon City, AllMS Campus, New Delhi, India from December 15-20, 2010.

This conference will be a landmark event in the glorious history of our Association. It promises to provide an academic, social and cultural feast to all its participants.

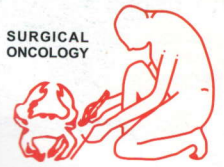

Asicon 2010 Live, the workshop on December 15 will be a different experience. The range will include "basic surgery hall" which will be targeting post graduates and beginners to an "Upper GI Hall", Hepato-Pancreatico- Biliary hall", "Colorectal Hall" and "Urology Hall" which will all be showing advanced, complex surgeries performed by masters which will be an academic feast for even the experienced surgeons.

Asicon CME on December 16 will have lectures in contemporary topics as well as master classes for post graduate by senior faculty from across the country.

The main conference from December 17 - 20 covering general surgery as well as specialty will also be different. The stress will be on the "practical aspects" on the topics of interest to one and all. Video component will be encouraged in every presentation.

Based on the inputs from delegates across the country, numerous New Features being added this time include "Know your tools", "Digital technology and Surgeon", "Virtual Reality in Surgical Training", "Medico-legal issues in surgical in practice", "Basics of Biostatistics that everyone must know" as well as a "Video hall" which will have large number of computer stations with preloaded, structured videos, drawn from national faculty, covering all the important topics.

ASITECH, the international medical technology show, will be a unique feature of this conference. We are working hard to get all the major players from India and abroad to put up their "tech-show" at ASITECH so as to make all the recent technological advances available to our delegates under one roof. For the first time in any conference in our country, a theme hall on "Surgeon as an entrepreneur" has been planned. The "ASITECH" will provide ample opportunities for the exchange of the scientific information between delegates and technical experts from the industry.

Apart from rich scientific content, asicon2010 will provide a unique opportunity for the families to enjoy the varied cultural programs as well as savor the rich heritage and contemporary culture of the city of Delhi.

The weather in mid December will be "pleasantly cool" neither too cold nor foggy and the city of New Delhi will be at its best after the Commonwealth games. Overall, " asicon 2010 is an event that you just cannot afford to miss ".

We once again invite you to join us for this mega event and enrich it with your gracious presence and active participation.
